RUSHING IN THE POLL BOOKS

turns Clerk M. E. Trapp, of Logan county and state auditor-elect, had his 21 poll books, tally sheets and certificates of this county on file with Secretary Nelson and held a receipt for the same.

The "Hunter interests" made their kick on the legality of the election returns not because they did not believe that the abstracts were a true account of the votes cast in the various counties, but only as an excuse to further delay statehood and to lay a foundation for another scheme which one member of the canvassing board last night admitted was couched.

The scheme is said to be this: The state election board will not abide by the decision of the canvassing board or the statutes of Oklahoma by going ahead and doing its duty as a ministerial board in canvassing the abstracts of the election on file with the secretary on the different state officials and representatives and announce the same as it appears upon the face of the abstracts.

It will wait until these poll books are brought here to canvass the prohibition and constitutional vote and will endeavor to substitute these poll books from the counties where some precincts were thrown out on irregularities on account of gross frauds perpetrated by the Republicans and canvass these instead of the abstracts.

This is not only a violation of law, but leaves a loophole for the county clerk to perpetrate gross frauds by changing the tally sheets in favor of the Republicans in these precincts, so as to elect some Republican representatives, one or two perhaps, and it will endeavor to fix things up so as to count in Hubbard in the Third district if possible. The reason for the belief that the board intends to not only count these precincts where gross frauds were perpetrated in favor of the Republicans and to change the poll books is this: At the meeting of the canvassing board yesterday it was decided that the board designated to certify the result of the election on the constitution to the President will certify both the result of the vote canvassed from the abstracts and from the poll books, tally sheets and precinct certificates.

This shows conclusively that the board has "double" as to whether congress did not "mean the abstract" instead of the returns as they now construe the meaning.

The Democrats insisted that the board insert in its letter that each county clerk should certify that the poll books and tally sheets he sends are exactly in the same condition as when he received them and that no change or alterations have been made. To this the (Republican board objected and stated that it was not necessary. They do this to shield those who would change the results and do not hold the county clerk responsible for any alterations that may be made in the books since the election either by him or any one else.

The Democrats will fight the use of these poll books in canvassing the result of the state ticket and state officials, but what can they do with three Republicans on the board who have already made up their minds to do the other?

The canvassing board upon the request of the Democratic state committee have agreed to give them a certified abstract of the vote cast for and against the constitution so that in case the other does not reach the White House the Democrats will have a copy to take there if necessary.

In case the state election board abides by the Oklahoma statutes and canvasses the vote on the state election from the abstracts on file as the Democrats contend that they should, Chairman Hunter will then use the poll books as evidence in filing a contest in congress in the Third district asking that Frank Hubbard be seated.

NEW YORK'S DEFENSE

Even if the navy should be engaged elsewhere New Yorkers need have no fear of their homes in case of an attack by warships of a hostile country, according to Major General Frederick D. Grant, commanding the Department of the East. While General Grant declined yesterday to make any comparisons between the work of the navy and army gunners, he did say this: "I am convinced that the gunners in the forts in my department can shoot so well that they can put warships out of action fully as fast as they can come up against them. New Yorkers need have no fear. I can block any channel to this city with any advance ships of a hostile fleet."

Considerable discussion and not a little bad feeling has been engendered between army and navy men over the quality of marksmanship displayed in each branch of the service. General Grant said he was glad the navy gunners were such good marksmen, but he did not intend that they should get away with all the glory, for army marksmanship had always been one of its bolities.

In 1905 General Grant recommended to the War department that a bonus be paid for superior marksmanship in the army. The results were beyond his expectations. In the fourteen companies in his command the general figure of merit in that year was 66.1. The next year under the bonus plan, it was 59.7.
